

CIVIL SOCIETY

JUNE 7–13, SANTA FE

Civil Society refers to the social welfare of a community, as measured by such indicators as crime and divorce rates. This institute will examine the empirical literature on the state of our civil society, with the aid of some of America's best empirical scholars, and after an introduction on how to interpret empirical results.

Let's Make a Deal: What Is Probability
And How Do We Use It?

Orley Ashenfelter
Industrial Relations, Princeton University

How Do We Learn from Data—
And Just What Is Data?

Orley Ashenfelter

How Do We Determine
That a Causes b , or b Causes a ,
or None of the Above

Orley Ashenfelter

Immigration

George Borjas
Kennedy School, Harvard

Education

Paul Peterson
Kennedy School, Harvard

Crime

James Q. Wilson
Public Policy, Pepperdine

The Family

David Popenoe
Sociology, Rutgers

Orley Ashenfelter is a past president of the American Economics Association and the editor of the American Economic Review, and will be lecturing on material taken from the Federal Judicial Center's Scientific Evidence. Amongst economists, George Borjas is the leading expert on immigration, and Paul Peterson is the leading empirical scholar on school reform. James Q. Wilson is the dean of American social policy scholars and was awarded a Presidential Medal of Freedom in July 2003. David Popenoe is a noted expert on divorce trends.

JAMES Q. WILSON

PAUL PETERSON